Accelerated Masters Admissions: Applicants are evaluated for admission with the same criteria as all other master's program applicants. To apply, students must meet all criteria stated in the George Mason University Catalog and in the School for Conflict Analysis and Resolution's Accelerated Master's Program Policies and Procedures. Students interested in the Accelerated Master's Program must meet with an Academic Advisor to review program policy and complete the Accelerated Master's Application at least one month before the application deadline. Application does not guarantee admission.
